LAKERS IN GOTHAM.

The "News" Correspondent Indulges in Some Ecstasies Over Maude Adams - How Utanians Spent Thanksgiving Day.

Special Correspondence. New York, Dec, 1, 1901.

"The lilies are her pretty thoughts, Her shoulders are the May, Her smiles are all forget-me-nots, The paths her gracious way.
The roses that do line it are
Her fancies walking 'round, 'Tis sweetly smelling lavender In which my lady's gowned."

"Phebe of the ringlets," the sweetest daintiest little girl in all New York I do not care if the play is "thir waisted." if her leading man has "no magnetism," and falls far short of the "ideal lover;" if all the male characters are not equal to the female roles; in fact, if all these are to be remembered, and many other things, there is no denying that Maude Adams is a gen-tus. The uplifting of her magnetism would float a sinking ship-and her little ship is on the top-most wave, where it will rest as long as her wonderful personality guides it. "Quality Street" does not overwhelm one all at once: it's a play you can take home, and think about, recalling this artisitic little bit. and that winsome little piece of naturalism. It is all so genuine, so pathetic, that one may take it, as it were, in one's arms like a loving but wilful child, to caress and pet, notwithstanding its faults. This dear little idyll will be stored away in heart and memory, long its impersonators have laid it aside for more ambitious roles.

Mrs. Young's diners are always appreciated by those rtunate enough to receive invitations: fame as a hostess is not confined to Salt Lake alone, but has reached this city, and in her home a welcome is aiways extended to friends from Utah.

Mrs. Chloe Eldredge dined "en famille" that day; she received many invitations to eat Thanksgiving turkey with friends, but as her family at pres ent in New York is quite large-Mrs. Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. Bateman, Miss Mamie, Messrs. Harold and Guy, all being here, she decided they could fill a table themselves; and to the regret of friends was obliged to decline their hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. John Groesbeck, with their happy family, took dinner alone. They have a fine large flat in Brook-lyn, but friends are doing their best to make them dissatisfied, so they will Thanksgiving day was well observed lyn, but friends are doing their best to make them dissatisfied, so they will move to New York, where they will

At the "Utah Tavern" Mrs. Laine and Mrs. Davis entertained in their gen-erous style. There were many Salt Lakers present, also Elders Gill and Eastman; every one from Utah is wel-come at their hospitable board.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Ferguson, with heir family, took dinner at the Mat-thews residence, Riverside Drive, Mrs. Mathews being a sister of "Jimmie. It had always been the custom with the mother, who made her home with her daughter, and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Matthews, to observe this day religiously, having only her immediate family present. Although her gentle spirit passed to the great beyond a few months ago, her influence was felt by all that day. The writer being a personal friend of this grand woman, can well understand the sadness of her family, as they gathered on this memorable day, without her kindly pres-

President Burrows, who has been honorably released from his missionary labors here, leaves tomorrow for his old home in Texas, to visit his mother and relatives. He was the recipient of so many invitations to dine with his Brooklyn and Harlem friends and converts, on Thanksgiving day, it was hard to locate him, but at the home of Miss Shaffer he could have been found en-joying his turkey and other good day among our people here, was the one presided over by Mrs. R. C. Easton and Mrs. Melissa Sears, at 50 Concord street, Brooklyn. On invitation of these two ladies, twenty people sat down to the table in the dining room of that well known old headquarters. Mrs. Easton and Mrs. Sears, with the assistance of diss Ruth Wilson and Miss Susie Bycraft as their charming waitresses in white caps and muslin aprons, did the honors and gave the "brethren" a din-ner long to be remembered by them. Those present were: Elders Neff. For-

Old Coughs

New coughs are bad enough; old coughs are worse. They make you think of bronchitis or consumption. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cures consumption. Not all cases, but very many. Your doctor will explain this to you. Talk with him about it.

"My mother had consumption for many years and was given up to die. Then she tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and was completely cured."-D. P. Jolly, Avoca, N. Y.

Beer and Anderson the last four being missionaries on their way home from Europe. The invited friends were: Clyde Squires, J. Wesley Young, Hoop-er Young and Harry Studdart. No merrier party ate Thanksgiving dinner that day than this one, and it is doubtful if turkey anywhere suffered greater slaughter, or was more enthusiastically appreciated. The two hostesses felt amply repaid for their efforts in giving the missionaries a taste of "mothers's home cooking."

Last night we saw the great Drury Lane pantomime, "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast." Naturally our interest centered in Prince Charming Viola Pratt-Gillette, and she was a great surprise; the ease and grace with which she played, are perfect, and certainly one may be forgiven if mention is made of her faultless figure. She was the "Fairy Prince" of childhood recol-lection, beautiful from head to foot, dainty and lissome in all her move s so rich in scenic effects, and the humor of its three leading characters Bulger, Ross and Cawthorne so over-whelming that all singing seems crowded out, and Mrs. Gillette has really out two solos, though in them, she shows the range of her fine contralto voice. It is the grandest spectacle of its kind ever seen in New York, and is booked for a long season here.

Bob Easton has gone on the Canadian tour with J.H. Stoddart's "Bonnie Brier Bush" company; he was given a hand-some increase in salary to induce him to make the trip. JANET.

ONE OF TEXAS' BIG RANCHES.

Texas is noted for the number and extent of its ranches. Of a total of sev eral thousands, they vary in size from a few thousand to several million acres, the large ones averaging 50,000 acres. The greatest is the "X. I. T.," in the Panhandle, which embraces half a dozen counties and contains nearly 3,000,-000 acres. It belongs to the "Capitol Syndicate," a company of men who re-ceived this vast territory some twenty years ago in return for providing the magnificent state house at Austin. The ranch is divided into seven sections, each managed by a foreman, and each connected with the headquarters by means of telephones. The whole is run with the system and dispatch which characterizes all great industries. On this ranch now run considerably over 100,000 head of cattle, and an idea of the size may be gained from the fact that the pasture fence extends 210 miles in one direction and 25 in another, making a total of about 5,000 square miles From time to time small parcels of have been sold, and valuations have appreciated from 50 cents an acre to four times that amount.—Review of Reviews. What a Tale It Tells.

Except for short drives she remains at home in the little wooden house in North Market street, made famous by the pilgrimages of thousands of voters, who swore fealty to President McKin-ley in 1896 and again in 1900, and which has entertained many of the best known statesmen of the nation. To Mrs. McKinley life is but a void. She expressed to Dr. Machester, the pastor, and long friend of the McKinleys, shortly after the martyred President's funeral, a desire to die and join her husband. This desire is still present. She talks but little to her friends have tomb, and was allowed to enter and to tomb, and was allowed to enter and to remain for a short time beside the casket containing her beloved dead. This visit was repeated daily. Friends have at last prevailed on her not to enter the vault, and her visits now are to the tomb, and to the family lot, where rest the ashes of her children. Callers on Mrs. McKinley are but few, as she is so despondent that even her most intimate friends have falled to bring back any degree of cheer to her. Her pleasures, if she has any, are in the past.

Mrs. McKinley, the invalid, was an inspiration to her husband because she cheered him in ways that the world knows not of. Her body was weak but her spirit and faith were strong.

From the time that he started on a pobe expected to go out much even if physically strong, but it is also the per-iod of Mrs. McKinley's melancholy. It is with the latter feature that her litical career she was confident that he would some day be President. This faith she expressed to him and to her friends.

Perhaps at no place was the daily Perhaps at no place was the daily companionship of President and Mrs. McKinley more in evidence than in their Canton home. Some of the busiest hours of the President were spent here, but he was never too busy to give attention to his beloved wife. He would drop the most important matters of state or excuse himself from the most important caller if her condition at any time became such as to demand his

In former years Mrs. McKinley loved music and frequently called on her friends to furnish It. She also delighted in little family social functions and in entertainments furnished her the friends. These desires have vanished.
